THE DUBLIN-HOLYHEAD "DELAY"

Tourist Chief's Second Protest

MR. J. A. NUGENT, chairman of the Irish Tourist Board, has sent another telegram to Mr. John Elliot, chairman of the Railway Executive, British Railways.

It says: "Unsatisfactory conditions continue on Dun Laoghaire-Holyhead route. Disappointed no reply to my telegram of August 14 requesting assurances. Prepared meet you for discussion."

In a telegram to Mr. Elliot last Tuesday, Mr. Nugent said that 95 passengers were stranded on the pier at Dun Laoghaire (Kingston, Dublin) that night owing to lack of shipping accommodation.

This was in reply to Mr. Elliott, who objected to an earlier public protest by Mr. Nugent, and declared: "British Railways have provided two new ships costing £2,000,000 and improved facilities at Holyhead. In contrast, Irish authorities have even failed to provide temporary additional buildings for this summer, as promised."

Mr. Nugent's reply said: "Contents considered irrelevant. Facilities at Dun Laoghaire important, but not at issue in present case."

"Would Have Saved Position"

The mail boat Duke of York arrived at Dun Laoghaire yesterday three hours late with a full complement of 1,100. It was understood there was not enough depth of water in the channel to take her out. When she left Holyhead she left behind about 400 passengers.

On the return trip she left about 300 people behind at Dun Laoghaire.

A British Railways official said that the bigger Hibernia had developed engine trouble. Had she been on the route, she would have saved the situation.

The Cambria, which arrived at Dun Laoghaire at 6 p.m. last night with 1,200 passengers left again at 9-15 p.m. with a full complement, including the 300 left behind by the Duke of York, but still had to leave 500 people behind.

Crash Blocks the Line

THE Perth-Inverness railway line was blocked for six hours, following a collision between two freight trains at Murthly (Perthshire) station, shortly before 1 a.m. to-day.

The trains involved were the 5-10 p.m. Inverness to Perth and the 12-15 a.m. Perth to Aviemore. The northbound goods was coming off the single line into the double track loop beyond Murthly station when the trains collided. The engine crews escaped injury.

A number of wagons on both trains were derailed and badly damaged, and they completely blocked the line until 6-47 a.m., when passenger traffic from Perth was able to get through on the single line.

Bus services brought southbound passengers, stranded at Murthly, into Perth.

The scene of the crash is a few miles south of Dalguise station where, on August 1, a Perth-Blair Atholl passenger train was in collision with a single coach service train from Inverness and seven people were hurt.

HIGH WIND IN JAMAICA

Miami (Florida), Saturday.—A hurricane in the Caribbean Sea is believed to have swept Jamaica, biggest of the British West Indies Islands, with 120-miles-an-hour winds last night.

British Overseas Airways in Miami said it had lost contact with the island when the airport and radio tower at Kingston were evacuated.

The latest Reuter cable from Kingston said that the population were taking precautions after warnings that a hurricane was heading towards the island.

DIES AFTER A RIDING ACCIDENT

Major Patrick Leatham, whose death in the Radcliffe Infirmary, Oxford, as a result of a riding accident, is announced to-day, was in the 10th Royal Hussars.

For the Hon. Mrs. Cecily Leatham, a niece of Lord Camrose and Lord Kemsley, it is the second riding fatality. Her father, Lord Buckland of Bwich, died in 1928 after falling from his horse.

Early last year Major Leatham bought Seagry House, Chippenham, Wilts., the scene of a fire in 1949 when Clare, Countess Cowley lost her life. Seagry House adjoined his property at Seagry Manor.

HOLIDAY RUSH BY ROAD

A spokesman at Victoria Coach Station, London, described the holiday rush there as "very much like an August Bank Holiday Saturday, with thousands of people leaving every hour for all parts of Britain."

About 1,200 coaches, carrying 37,000 people, were due to leave the station to-day.

Coaches with 300 holiday-makers are leaving for extended tours of the Wye Valley and the far North of Scotland.

STREET BETTING

Fines of £5 each for street betting were imposed at Castle Eden to-day on John Bainbridge (51), of Cotsford Park Estate, Horden; Tom Charlton (51), Second Street, Horden; and Richard Edwards (48), of Arnold Avenue, Blackhall Coll.

Off to the Seaside

Members of the Horden office of the Ministry of National Insurance leave for their first annual outing, which was to Saltburn.

U.S. EUROPEAN AID IS SLASHED

THE U.S. House of Representatives has cut 350 million dollars (about £125 million) from proposed economic aid to Europe—a setback for Mr. Truman.

The action was on a motion on the Foreign Arms and Economic Aid Bill. The motion was carried by 186 to 177.

The President had asked for 8,500 million dollars (£3,035 million). He got 7,498,750,000 dollars (£2,678,120,000) after cuts made in committee and in the House.

The European economic aid had already been cut by 340 million dollars (£121,428,570) by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Western Europe's final allocation is: 5,028 million dollars (£1,790 million) in military aid, and 985 million dollars (£350 million) in economic aid. This is 265 million dollars (£94 million) less in military aid and 690 million dollars (£246 million) less in economic aid than the President requested.

Except for the trimming of economic aid to Europe, the Bill followed substantially the recommendations of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

ONE TOWN TO ANOTHER

MR. CHESTER A. CROCKER, who for 19 years was civic head of the Massachusetts town of Barnstaple, has sailed for Britain to visit the town's namesake in Devon.

Mr. Crocker said his visit was "in return for the visit paid by the Mayor of Barnstaple, Devon, in 1919, when the Massachusetts town celebrated its 300th anniversary."

Last June, at a town meeting in Barnstaple, Mass, it was voted that funds should be raised for Mr. Crocker's expenses to attend the borough fair at Barnstaple, Devon, beginning on September 19.

Surgeon Saved Him

EMERGENCY OPERATION AT SEA

An English sailor, Able Seaman P. F. Prike (26), of Ipswich, who is recuperating in hospital in Tokio, owes his life to the skill of a Glasgow surgeon who undertook an emergency operation for appendicitis in cramped quarters of the New Zealand frigate, Rotoiti, off Korea.

Afterwards the Rotoiti met the United States aircraft-carrier, Sicily, equipped with full hospital facilities. An American doctor, flown from the Sicily by helicopter, found Prike sleeping soundly.

Prike was transferred to an American cruiser and taken to Japan. He expects to rejoin the Rotoiti in a few days.—Reuter.

Russia "Colonizing Poland"

Landskrona (South Sweden), Saturday. — Twelve Poles who escaped to Sweden after they mutinied in a Polish minesweeper, said here that their ship had been mapping out minefields to be laid in the Baltic in any future war.

Commander Ivanov, head of the Polish Navy's hydrographic section, was on board to supervise the work personally, they said.

They also claimed that about 200,000 Red Army men were posted along Poland's east and west frontiers, and that Russia was colonizing Poland by "encirclement and infiltration."—Reuter.

Concern for Missing Launch

FRENCH naval authorities were to-day asked to keep a look-out for the 16-ton converted air-sea rescue launch Laguna Bay, with a crew of five, which was to-day reported to have left Le Treport, on the French Coast, for Boulogne last Saturday, and has not been heard of since.

Earlier it was believed that she had set out from Deauville for Southampton, where she was due back last Saturday.

The Laguna Bay left Southampton for a holiday cruise to Deauville on July 28, carrying the owner, Mr. G. C. Berry, an engineer, of Oxford Rd., Chiswick, London; Michael Sahl (17), of Esmond Road, Chiswick; Christopher Gogarty (26) and his brother Raphel (21), of Palace Street, Drogheda, Co. Louth, Eire, and Donald Adderley (17), of Ashford, Middlesex.

The last contact from anybody on board was a postcard from Deauville dated August 6. It gave no indication of later arrival date at Southampton, but said that the launch was going to Brittany before returning home.

BURNED BY BLOW LAMP

The 22-year-old plumber, John Harwood, of Mauldslie Street, Bridgeton, Glasgow who was severely burned while using a blowlamp in repairing a bathroom pipe in a house in Rutherglen, last night, was reported to be seriously ill at Glasgow Royal Infirmary to-day.

QUEUES AND CROWDS

Early morning queues for the third day of the Test match at The Oval to-day were unexpectedly light.

There was only a trickle of spectators between 6 a.m. and 7 a.m., but an hour later the four-deep queue stretched about 400 yards from the Hobbs Gates, with people continuing to arrive steadily.

Trains leaving London for the South-East and South coasts, the West of England and South Wales were crowded with holiday-makers to-day. Largest crowds left from Waterloo and Victoria.

Five extra trains were due to leave Paddington for the West and South Wales, and early indications were that these would be well filled.

Additional trains were taking Festival visitors into London.

R.A.F. Fund Helped 12,300

The R.A.F. Benevolent Fund announced that £307,625 was spent during the first half of this year on assistance to serving and ex-Service members of the R.A.F. and W.R.A.F.

Financial aid was given to 12,342 cases in Great Britain and overseas.

In England 9,613 cases were helped at a cost of £265,712, while £14,212 was spent in helping 604 Welsh cases; in Scotland 967 cases shared £12,385; in Northern Ireland 225 cases received £2,324, and in Eire 625 cases shared £5,509.

There were also 308 overseas cases who received more than £7,400.

Journey's End for Stanfirth

THE disabled British cargo ship Stanfirth (7,285 tons) which ran out of fuel in heavy seas off the Victorian coast nine days ago, reached Sydney to-day, after being towed, stern first, by two tugs.

The crew of the Stanfirth had to pump day and night and burn waste wood to provide hot meals for themselves and one woman passenger, they told reporters in a launch which met them ten miles off the coast to-day.

One man said: "We were without lights at night, and late last night had to burn wood to raise steam to haul in a cable broken during the towing effort."

The Ropner collier Heronspool (7,174 tons) which stood by the Stanfirth during most of the trouble and towed her part of the time, has entered Sydney harbour.

Thousands of Sydney people gathered round the harbour to watch the crippled Stanfirth on the final stages of her journey.

Child's Body in Left Luggage

The body of a child was discovered late last night in a suitcase at a left luggage office in Queen Street Station, Glasgow.

It was wrapped in rubber matting and sheets of white wrapping paper.

The suitcase was stated to have been deposited earlier in the day by a woman.

C.I.D. officers, called by railway police, were later trying to obtain her description.

The discovery was made after employees had investigated an unusual odour.

SEAMEN ON DRUG CHARGE

Montreal, Saturday. — Three seamen, two of them from Manchester, will appear before a court to-day on charges of possessing and selling drugs.

They were arrested yesterday by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who alleged they were trying to peddle three pounds of marijuana in a tavern.

The three were named as Eric Davies (39), Ademola Alumuyma (28), both of Manchester, and William Ridley (28), of Montreal.

A police official said the men were members of the crew of the 5,620-ton steamer Manchester Progress.—Reuter.

STRANDED "TROOPER" IS TOTAL LOSS

A NAVAL tug, the Emu, left Darwin early to-day under secret orders.

Naval authorities refused to confirm or deny reports that she was steaming to recover a cargo of arms abandoned in the New Zealand troopship Wahine (4,436 tons) which ran aground on a reef three days ago while on her way to Korea with 575 troops.

Included among the Wahine's cargo were field guns, arms and ammunition and six scout cars. Islanders have been reported swarming over the vessel since troops were taken off.

The Emu took with her a number of New Zealand troops.

The Wahine's owners, Union Steamship Co., said in Wellington, to-day that the vessel had been abandoned to the underwriters as a total loss.—Reuter.
