MINISTER'S BRIDE

Wedding of Rev. J. R. Bickle and Miss Ludlow

The Rev. Jack Rodney Bickle, until recently Methodist minister at Warminster and Westbury, and now at Barnstaple, was married on Saturday at Manvers Street Methodist Church, Trowbridge, to Miss Dorothy Joan Ludlow, of Staverton. Mr. Bickle is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Bickle, of Ilfracombe, and the bride is Ludlow the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ludlow, of 96 Staverton Road, Trowbridge.

The service was conducted by the Rev. H. Holroyd, and the organist was Mr. Holroyd's son John.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a white satin dress with a long train, and orange blossom headdress. Her gold watch was the gift of the bridegroom. She carried a shower bouquet of yellow carnations and cream roses.

There were three attendants: Mrs. T. Ludlow, sister-in-law of the bride, Miss B. Ludlow, sister, and Miss J. Pearce. Mrs. Ludlow and Miss Ludlow wore gowns of turquoise taffeta, and Miss Pearce lemon taffeta. All carried bouquets of lemon carnations and dahlias.

The best man was the Rev. A. Triffitt, friend of the bridegroom, and the groomsmen were Mr. T. Ludlow and Mr. S. Hitchens.

After a reception at the Court Hall Cafe, Trowbridge, the couple left for their honeymoon at Ilfracombe, the bride travelling in an ultramarine suit with hat to tone and navy accessories.

Among the guests at the wedding were a cheque from the Warminster Methodist Church, a set of fish knives and forks from the Boys' Brigade Mission Hall, Warminster, a bedroom chair and linen basket from Westbury Methodist Church, a set of tea cloths from Sunday School and a set of fruit spoons from Staverton Methodist Church, a silver tea set from friends at Avon India Rubber Company, a canteen of cutlery from the bride's groom's parents and sister, and a "Heatmaster" tea set and bed linen from the bride's parents.

WEDDING AT HOLY TRINITY

Mr. R. C. Hawkins and Miss L. J. Griffin

The wedding took place on Saturday at Holy Trinity Church, Trowbridge, of Mr. Ronald Charles Hawkins, second son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Hawkins, of 427 Radstock Road, Melksham, and Miss Laura Joan Griffin, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Griffin, of 41 West Street, Trowbridge. The service was conducted by the Rev. C. P. Hanna, vicar of Holy Trinity.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a figured crepe gown with full veil and flowered headdress. She carried a double row of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom, and carried a shower bouquet of red carnations.

There were three attendants: Mrs. D. Rose, sister of the bride, who wore a turquoise crepe dress and billet cap and carried a bouquet of sweet peas; and Patricia Stevens and Pauline Abbott, nieces of the bridegroom, who were in pink crepe dresses covered in net, and with floral headdresses, and they carried baskets of sweet peas. Mrs. Rose wore a double row of pearls, the gift of the bride, attendants silver crosses and chains, all the gifts of the bridegroom.

Best man was Mr. Frederick Hawkins, brother of the bridegroom, and groomsmen were Mr. J. Griffin and Mr. J. Hawkins.

After a reception at Trinity Hall the couple left for their honeymoon at Cardiff, the bride travelling in a cherry costume with black accessories.

DEATH OF MR. F. COCKERTON

Over Fifty Years in Business

Mr. Fred Cockerton, proprietor of G. Rogers & Co., furnishers and ironmongers, of Church Street and Duke Street, Trowbridge, for many years, died on Sunday at his home at Talbot Road, Bournemouth, aged 77.

Mr. Cockerton came to Trowbridge well over fifty years ago as an assistant in the ironmongery department of the late Mr. H. J. Knee's business, which then was in premises where now stand Messrs. Burton's shop. Soon afterwards he went to work for the firm of G. Rogers, and in time became the proprietor of that business, which has for many years past had branches at Westbury and Melksham. It lived for a greater part of his business life in Trowbridge, at Clarendon and Frome Road, but later moved to Lansdowne Street, Bournemouth on his partial retirement a few years ago.

Mr. Cockerton's favourite relaxation from business was shooting, at which he had great skill. He served with the Special Constabulary throughout the last war, and became a familiar unconformed figure on point duty in the town. He was twice married, and leaves a widow—formerly Miss Elsie Lambdin, of Trowbridge—and a son.

The funeral took place at Bratton on Thursday.

DIVING CHAMPION

Leonard Haldane, 15-years-old member of Trowbridge Swimming Club and a pupil at Trowbridge Boys' High School, retained the Wiltshire senior diving championship at Salisbury on Saturday. Haldane won the championship last year and also won the county junior diving championship and the Western Counties junior championship. He was placed in the all-England boys' diving championship at London earlier this year.

A full list of the results of the championship meeting appears in our Sports Page.

CHEMISTS ON DUTY

The following chemists are open for dispensing next week after normal shopping hours: Sunday, Aug. 26th (12 to 1 p.m.), Aplins, Silver Street; Monday (to Saturday, including Wednesday (6 to 7 p.m.), Boots, Fore Street.

CARNIVAL TIME

Huge Crowd Greets the Crowned Queen

Miss Maureen Ivin

Carnival time is here again in Trowbridge, and a crowd of several thousands gave us a good start on Wednesday evening at the commencement of the Carnival Queen. Although the ceremony was due to start until 7.30 large queues formed up outside the Town Hall from seven o'clock. Towards the end of the evening a large crowd started to gather outside the Town Hall and when the newly-crowned Queen stepped out on to the balcony she was acclaimed by a crowd which now reached the proportions of a General Election assembly.

Carnival people on the town have recently been thinking that interest in the Carnival Queen competition has been in the wane, but a Wednesday's large crowd is any criterion, enthusiasm seems to be as great as ever.

The announcement and the crowning of the Queen was part of a gala variety concert, with artists from Trowbridge, Bath and Salisbury on a gally-decorated stage.

The announcement of the winning contestant was made by Viscount Long, president of the Trowbridge Legion. Maid-in-Waiting Ursula Lester brought a large official-looking envelope on to the stage and handed it to Viscount Long, who opened it and read out the name, eight and two.

Amidst loud cheering, and displaying little embarrassment, the whole competitors walked on to the stage, led by the Queen, who will be:

MISS MAUREEN IVIN.

Her first maid of honour will be

MISS JUNE CARRIER,

and her second maid will be

MISS MARGARET CHALMERS.

To add to the charm of beauty will be the Butterfly Queen:

BARBARA CHALMERS,

sister of the second maid of honour.

The Queen, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ivin, of 17 Waterworks Road, Trowbridge, is 22. She is tall and fair, with a charming smile and with a dignity and assurance that will doubtless make her a popular choice among the townsfolk. This was shown to advantage when she replied to the loyal addresses in a quiet but nevertheless strong voice.

She has lived all her life in Trowbridge and attended the Innox Road School. She now works as a clerk in Messrs. Birds' coal office.

Asked by our reporter if she had ever before won a beauty competition, she replied that in 1949 she was third in a beauty competition, but this had not influenced her into entering for the Queen. In fact, she said, she had entered the Queen contest by someone unknown to her.

She is engaged, but would not disclose the name of her fiance, who was not in the hall to see her crowned, but was in the crowd outside waiting for her appearance on the balcony.

Her Maids of Honour

Miss Carrier was a Maid of Honour at last year's Carnival Queen. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Carrier, of 26a Roundstone Street, Trowbridge, and is 18. She is employed in the china department of Messrs. H. J. Knee. She, too, is dark-haired.

The other Maid of Honour, Miss Chalmers, is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Chalmers, of 14 Charles Street, Trowbridge. Aged 16, she works in the automatic quill-winding department of Messrs. Clark's factory. Like the other attendant she is of medium height but has slightly lighter hair.

All three of the "Royal" party have one thing in common—a charming smile—and they will make a delightful trio.

To add the final touch of charm is the Butterfly Queen, who caused many lady members of the audience to say "I isn't she sweet" as she came on to the stage. She is Margaret Chalmers' younger sister and celebrated her second birthday last week. Her selection was therefore a pleasant birthday surprise. Until recently she was a choirgirl at the Parochial school, but after the school holidays will be going to the Nelson Street school.

She was not noticeably nervous, but, naturally, perhaps, faltered a little while reading her prepared for the loyal address—which probably endeared her even more to the large number of people who gathered.

After they had all taken their places the two Queens were crowned and made Maids of Honour respectively by Her Grace the Duchess of Somerset, wife of the Lord Lieutenant of the county.

Crowning and Speeches

Both Queens were then crowned with handsome crowns and robed in robes of claret and ermine, and the two maids in purple.

Mr. G. W. Goodman, as the Queen's Prime Minister, read the address in which he said the Trowbridge Carnival had achieved beyond during the past 25 years, "and we have no doubt that you will carry on the tradition and inspiration of Your Majesty and your Maids of Honour will continue to achieve even greater success than in the years that have gone."

The principal aim of the British Legion is benevolence and at all times the Legion is ready to help the wives of the ex-Service man or woman or their dependants who may be in need of assistance.

"We wish you and your Maids of Honour every happiness in the coming weeks and pray that your reign may be richly blessed."

The two Queens replied very simply but—that was greeted with renewed applause.

Work of the Legion

Before the crowning of the Queen Lord Long introduced the Duke of Somerset, who is president of the Legion and of Wiltshire is also president of the Somerset British Legion. Lord Long said the Trowbridge Legion wondered if it was appreciated how much work and worthwhile work Trowbridge had done. Lieutenant. "Day after day either His Grace or Her Grace have given their best work in this beloved county of ours," he said.

His Grace spoke of the good work being done by the British Legion and said that the Trowbridge branch now had 740 men members and 80 women.

It is absolutely astonishing the distance it makes when there is a strong women's branch to help the men carry on the good work they do," he said.

He mentioned that during the past year, since the Trowbridge British Legion Carnival started, they had helped the Legion to the tune of £600 in expenditure on benevolent work averaged £450 a year, and in addition grants had been made out of Carnival proceeds to other ex-Service organisations, East Haig's fund, rested Portal's fund for wounded ex-Service men, British Legion Convalescent Homes, and £350 had been sent to the Earl Haig's Homes fund.

He wished the Carnival every success and said: "I on behalf of the people of Trowbridge to see that the British Legion can continue its good work." A vote of thanks to Their Graces, and Lord Long, was proposed by Mr. F. H. A. Holloway, chairman of the Carnival Committee, and seconded by Mr. P. B. Sylvester, chairman of the British Legion.

Bouquets were then presented to the Queen and her Maids and to the Duchess of Somerset, and buttonholes to the Duke and to Lord Long by the Maid-in-Waiting, Ursula Lester.

Throughout the latter part of the proceedings the crowd waiting outside was beginning to make its presence heard and when the members of the "Royal" party appeared on the balcony they were

CLOTH FACTORY VISITED

By Teachers from Summer School

Members of the residential Wool Summer School which is being held at Bath this week included visits to the Trowbridge cloth mills of Messrs. J. & T. Clark, Ltd., in their comprehensive programme of lectures, films and conducted factory tours.

The course's 65 students, principally school teachers from various parts of the country, came to Trowbridge seven two parties—one on Monday and the second on Tuesday—and displayed considerable interest in the numerous processes which transform the imported bales of wool into finished rolls of cloth ready for the tailor. The School was arranged by the Department of Education of the International Wool Secretariat, a non-profit-making organisation, founded in 1937 by the wool growers of South Africa, New Zealand and South Africa, and special reference has been made to the growth, production and history of wool in relation to such subjects as history and geography, economics, commerce and industrial organisation.

"We aim to show how wool enters into a great number of subjects in the ordinary curriculum," said Mr. Raymond Keys, Director of Education of the Secretariat, "by a number of years and last year's at Galashiels, Scotland. Thus, in coming to the West of England the School visits a very important woollen manufacturing area and has combined its studies with visits to local beauty spots and historic marks. In addition to the teachers in the party, lecturers of the Wool Secretariat and Wool Industries Research Council and a staff trainer from an Australian firm. One of the teachers is a Scottish Laird from Nigeria.

The course was opened on Monday morning by Mr. H. W. Brand, Director of Education for Bath, and during the week mills have been visited at Stroud, Wilton and Glastonbury. A reception was held on the day last (Thursday) evening in the banqueting room of Bath Guildhall, at which Mr. Ivor Bulmer-Thomas, M.P., spoke.

Experts have dealt with all aspects of wool, including latest technical developments in the production of worsted sections of the industry, in their lectures, and the course concludes on Saturday. Each day has suggested ways in which teachers can use the story of wool for special educational projects in their classrooms.

WEDNESDAY WEDDING

Mr. J. Spackman and Miss M. J. Sheppard

At Trowbridge Parish Church on Wednesday of last week Mr. John Spackman, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Spackman, of Church Street, Steeple Ashton, was married to Miss Margaret Jean Sheppard, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Sheppard, of 3 Charles Street, Trowbridge.

The service was conducted by Canon O. R. Yerburgh, in the absence of the Rector (Rev. R. L. Pelly). Mr. J. Arlett was at the organ.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a white figured satin gown with headdress of orange blossom, and embroidered veil lent by a friend. She wore a double row of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom, and carried a shower bouquet of red carnations and stephanotis.

There was one bridesmaid, Miss Jessanne Murray, cousin of the bride, who wore a blue crepe dress with short veil and feathered headdress. She wore a single string of pearls, gift of the bridegroom, and carried a bouquet of pale pink carnations.

Best man was Mr. Harold Scrine, cousin of the bridegroom, and groomsman was Mr. Brian Scrine. A reception was held at the Court Hall Cafe, Trowbridge.

BOOSTING THE ARMY

A mobile Army recruiting exhibition arrived in Trowbridge on Thursday during a tour in this part of the country. The exhibition shows by means of models various aspects of life in the Army, and since it came to the town several inquiries were received from local people with a view to joining the Army.

HYMN-SINGING BROADCAST

The Rector of Trowbridge (Rev. R. L. Pelly) has been approached by the B.B.C. with a request for a broadcast of hymns from the Parish Church during November. The programme will be the first in a new series of hymn-singing and will probably take place during the afternoon.

TRAFFIC ISLANDS

Following the erection of traffic islands at Trinity Church corner, temporary islands have now been placed at the junction near the Pioneer Society's offices.

met with tremendous cheering from a crowd which filled the Town Hall and practically blocked the surrounding streets.

In fact the indefatigable Mr. Albert Taylor, who as in previous years has been the main organisation behind the carnival, told our reporter that he thought it was the largest crowd he had ever seen waiting outside the Town Hall at Carnival crowning time.

Vote of Thanks

Before the official proceedings the audience was entertained with a really first-class programme by the Legion as the compere, Douglas Horner, of Calne, who is well known to B.B.C. performer, kept them amused with his delightful stories and jokes. Clever dancers, and brought loud cries of laughter when he wove comic stories round well-known local characters, including "Albie" "Taylor, "" Erby" Holloway, "Joe Collins and many others.

Donald James and Ann Dyet, two prominent performers from Bath, gave very good performances, James on his accordion and Ann Dyet with songs and dances. Alex Barrett, a native of Trowbridge, also gave a tip-top performance of Irish dancing, with Mr. Jack Flay as his accompanist.

The judging for the Queen, which took place on Monday evening, was carried out by Miss Laura Starks, Mrs. G. H. Wright, Mr. Arthur Mortimer and Mr. F. R. Hewitt, all of Bath.

Carnival Events

This Sunday in the Parish Church there is to be the dedication of the standard of the Royal Artillery Association and there will be a parade of ex-Service organisations from the Market Place, headed by the band of the 3rd Carabiniers.

The Carnival "proper," however, will start next Wednesday. At 12.30 the Convalescent Homes, and £350 Wednesday. At 12.30 the Convalescent Homes, and £350 Wednesday. At 12.30 the Convalescent Homes, and £350
